Two Officials of the Granite Club Under Arrest for Selling Liquor Unlawfully, and One Lehl Man for the Same Offense.

Theodore Nicholes was arrested on thursday, charged with selling two classes of lager beer to George Wanass of Lehi and John Crystal of American Fork on July 4. He was taken pefore Judge Nielsen and after entering a plea of "not guilty" was released inder $500 bonds. The case has not been set for hearing. It appears that Wanlass was in the Granite Club trinking with Crystal and others and was later arrested for intoxication. Rather than go to jail he told the officers where he got the booze.

The evening before Lawrence John-son of Lehi and Owen Hanson, a former official of the Granite Club, were arrested, charged with having sold liquor to Charles M. Clawson and F. S. Pyne on April 28, 1914. It appears that Pyne and Clawson came to Lehi, posing as drummers, and used John-, who is a member of the Granite Club, to help catch Hanson. Johnson innocently thought the two men to be drummers, and while doing what he thought was a friendly act, helped to close the trap on Hanson. There are two cases each against Johnson and Hanson by the same people. They are now out on $500 bonds in each case and will come up for trial next Tuesday morning.

The city officials are to be commended for the excellent order that was kept during Home-Coming Week and the small amount of drunkenness that was permitted on the streets.

Will Test Action Of City Counci

Yesterday morning the Briggs Pharmacy opened wide its front doors and one of the employees painted in big white letters on the sidewalk directly in front the sign, "Open for Business."
Tuesday evening, at a special session
the council flatly refused to grant
Briggs a license. It is understood the action yesterday was taken to make a test case of the matter, Briggs claiming that under the new corporation he has a right-to demand a license and the city contending that the new corporation is only a subterfuge to get away from the penalty inflicted on Briggs

Following Briggs' lead the American Fork Drug company also opened up yesterday and are operating without a license. It is now up to the city to grant a license or commence suit.

night, lost his mental balance and did and not report it to the proper offisome queer things. He was taking Messrs J. E. Teeter and Claud Stewart up to the Stewart mine in Deer Creek, when crossing the road near the forks of the canyon, Horton jumped into the creek remarking that they were after him. He was quieted down but about midnight, he again imagined some one was after him and said that at 2:20 he was going to die When 2.20 arrived, he jumped out of bed and ran around the canyon on his hands and feet like an animal and hid his head in some bushes. His companions finally got him back in bed again, but soon after day break he jumped out again and ran down the canyon, taking breakfast at the lower power plant. Here he was overtaken by his companions and gotten into the wagon, and all three started for American Fork. When nearing the city limits, Horton broke out again and struck Steward, cutting him in the face. He was flually landed in the city jail and his father, Roy Horton tlephoned for. After being in jail for several hours he seemed to quiet down and was taken back to Salt Lake City.

When the telegraph lines were pushed across the country under terrific stress and enormous cost, they were bailed with rejoicing. Next to water and traan portation, there were few things the people desired more. Fortunately, there was not much talk of government ownership then. The people and the government were very content to let the telegraph companies, or anyone else, build the lines and open communication to the frontier. The thought that someone yould make a prifit from the operation of the lines worried no one then it seemed ordinary and proper.
